

Spiritual Friends

By NoKi Moon

Raccoon

The other evening, we were sitting in a small cove at Sapony Creek doing some fishing. I hear some leaves crunching on the west bank and not long after, a raccoon came ambling down to the waters edge. He looked at us, and then went on his way searching for food along the shallow water. He soon disappeared back into the woods. Because of this visitation, I decided to tell you about the Raccoon.

Most people think of the raccoon as a masked bandit. Of course, raccoons are known to get into trouble, mainly cause they are very curious. Every night is an adventure for these little guys, Raccoons are very adaptable, so having one as a totem animal means you should be able to adapt to any situation. If these little furry animals can exist in the big cities, then you should be able to adapt to living anywhere.

Of course, don't be fooled by these cute little creatures. Raccoons can be very dangerous when threatened. To dream of a raccoon means you are being deceived by the friendly appearance of an enemy.

The mask of the raccoon doesn't only stand for thievery and deception. It can also represent wearing a mask to be closer to your spiritual side. Many cultures during their spiritual rituals wear masks. Maybe it's time to put on a mask and dance around a bonfire. You'll be surprised how much closer to your Deity you will feel.

To see a raccoon in your tea leaves means you need to be more curious about your surroundings. Be adventurous, take a different route home from work or on your next jog, take a different route.